Khalifa University Continuing Education Policy and procedures

CONTINUING EDUCATION

KU continuing education and professional development courses are designed by faculty who are experts in their fields to provide professionals with new knowledge, information, skills and opportunities to grow their careers, help advance their organizations, expand their network and impact their fields of profession. Participants will be immersed in high quality learning opportunities and experiences that are both cutting-edge and practical.

ORGANIZATION STRUCTURE

KU Continuing Education (CE) activities are coordinated in association with following two parties: A Continuing Education Director (CED), Continuing Education Business Development Manager. The Continuing Education Director reports directly to the President.

RESPONSIBILITIES

Continuing Education Director:

- Plays a role of reviewing/approving the initial requests to the level that when it reaches to provost office it will be at acceptable standards.
- Drafts out strategic intensions and missions/visions of CE program and submit to Provost for approval.
- Accountable for preparing and submitting five-year plans in CE services which include planning logistic needs, forecasting future revenues, and target clients and regions.
- Prepares yearly CE budget.
- Calls and chairs CE meetings when there is a need to develop and/or alter CE policies.
- Submits and/or presents CE draft policies to the Provost for final approval,
- Facilitates advanced notices to the Provost in relation to instructor payments and ask for his approval.
- Communicates with clients on the terms and the conditions of the training contract to be signed before the conduct of the course.
- Advices faculties in relation to their involvement in CE activities.
- Coordinates with finance in relation to all CE financial and accounting issues.
- Helps developing work service order documents for non-KU instructors.

Continuing Education Business Development Manager/ Finance

- In charge of developing draft polices that are needed to regulate the CE involvement of the faculties.
- Responsible for the development and implementation of strategic plans for cost-effectively and time-efficiently.
- Create /build a strong and successful partnership agreement with clients and potential clients
- Facilitate the growth of the business.

Objectives:

The policy provides clear guide to develop, establish and implement Continuing Education services fulfilling University's objectives.

Provide guidance to Continuing Education, faculty, and staff on how consultancy/training services may be undertaken using the University's name profit, or nonprofit services.

Encourage faculty involvement in community service and to increase faculty network.

Ensure that the request for training service comply with the requirements of this policy including the time allocation allowed.

Scope:

Continuing Education is non - academic and non - degree educational/training program. It aims of providing specific educational/training programs to develop skills of fresh and experienced graduates in different areas of science and engineering leveraging from Khalifa University highly educated and experienced faculty. Programs lengths can vary from one day workshop to several weeks depends on the nature of the program and clients' technical requests. The venue and facilities necessary to deliver the program is usually at KU, but it may be delivered in client's location, or other venues on agreement between with the client. Participants of the programs receive certificate of attendance from Continuing Education, but, in some cases, may lead to take international professional tests as per the client's request.

Contract/Agreement:

Faculty, or staff should not provide any services nor sign a final contract with client/s without a permission from the Dean of College/Department Head/ Continuing Education Director.

Consultancy/Training services shall not conflict with the faculty/staff's KU duties, academic or administrative. Preferably, the service strengths the relationship between the KU and the clients.

If a faculty/staff accepts consultancy/training services without KU approval, it may be considered act of misconduct and it may be subjected to disciplinary action.

Continuing Education Policy

KU faculty can engage in activities other than their regular duties for KU, by doing consulting services and/or teaching continuing education courses at KU or other locations. They, however, need to adhere to the following KU policies and rules for such activities. Any deviations from these procedures are not allowed unless they are approved by the Office of the Provost in writing and submitted to the Office of Continuing Education prior to the events. This policy is applied during the semesters and won't be applied to the times when faculty are on vacation.

1. Approval to Engage in Continuing Education Activities All such activities must go through the approval process of the Continuing Education.

2. External Clients from time to time, KU faculty may be approached by external parties/client(s) to deliver training and/or to use KU facility for training purposes. In these cases, the faculty should refer the client/s, regardless of clients' status (profit or non-profit), to the Continuing Education for further discussions. The Continuing Education will conclude agreement with the client/s. Faculty should not engage in contract negotiations with clients for the use of facilities nor for the training fees.

3. KU Duties faculty/ staff should be able to fulfill KU duties during the continuing education activity.

4. Time Allocation the following regulations will be applied the amount of time a faculty, staff can engage in CE activities:

   a. A faculty can engage in "activities" at most one day for every six workdays per year (January 1 to December 31). The "activities" include consultations, conferences, and the continuing education training services.

   b. A faculty should not engage in a continuing education activity which continues for more than two weeks. There may be courses which last more than two weeks at a time. In these occasions, duties should be shared by faculty such that no individual faculty is involved continuously for more than two weeks.

5. Time Allocation Exemption in case Continuing Education requires an involvement of the faculty more than 36 days, a certain approval of the Continuing Education Director should be obtained to conduct the program.

6. Faculty Compensation is an additional payment aside from KU monthly salary, who provide services such as Content Development with Delivery (Teaching) the amount of AED 2,350 a day (8 Hours) will be paid. The amount will be examined periodically based on factors such as market condition.
